

AAC Perspectives: What I Wish My Teachers Knew

Workshop

Explore the profound impact of school experiences on autonomy, belonging, connection and opportunity for students with a communication disability.

1.5 – 2hr
workshop

Available all year
Choose your dates

At a venue of your choice

Ask us for a quote

Understand the importance of equitable treatment for every student, while gaining insights into realistic expectations. Presented by Margie Charlesworth, Two Way Street Communication Access Consultant.

Who is this workshop for?

This professional development opportunity is designed for educators and others working in the classroom with students with a communication disability. Hear firsthand accounts of Margie's lived experience of a communication disability in mainstream schooling and the impact of both positive and negative experiences.

Learning outcomes:

- Explore the impact of school experiences on personal development and how they enable or inhibit autonomy, belonging, connection and opportunity
- Differentiate between positive and negative experiences by listening to firsthand accounts of lived experience with a communication disability
- Gain insights into fostering student dreams while focusing on their strengths and supporting their abilities

REQUEST NOW